PITZONKA'S

Perennial and Rock-Garden Plants

PITZONKA'S PANSY FARM AND NURSERY • BRISTOL, PENNA.

Hardy Perennials

PERENNIALS are definitely here to stay! In fact, many generations of gardeners have planted them for just that reason: their permanence and dependability. This does not mean that perennials like to be neglected; they deserve good garden care as much as any other plants, and are well worth it.

To avoid a spotty effect, plant at least three of a kind together. Color, height and blooming season need to be considered in grouping perennials. So many charming combinations are possible that a perennial border is a perpetual challenge and delight.

Herbs

These are old-fashioned plants that have been grown since ancient times for their culinary and medicinal value. Their history goes back to medieval days when their pleasant fragrance helped dispel the noxious odors that were so prevalent before means of sanitation were devised. Their leaves were used both fresh and dried for flavoring food. To this day many remedies are concocted from herbs, and most good cooks use them discriminately. If you can manage to have a small herb garden close to the kitchen door, you will get a lot of pleasure from seeing what you can do with these very useful plants. Ordinary garden soil and care are all they ask.

AGRIMONY (Agrimonia Eupatoria). One of those ancient herbs with quite a reputation for its medicinal qualities. Also used as a yellow dye. Not much used now but grown for its name and old-time reputation. Leaves look somewhat like a strawberry, with tapering spikes of yellow flowers. 12 to 18 in.

BALM, LEMON (Melissa officinalis). Clean bright green leaves, deliciously scented with lemon. Used as a tea, to flavor other drinks, as a medicine and for fragrance.

CATNIP (Nepeta Cataria). Beloved of cats; also a medicinal plant and used as a tea. Tall, gray foliage. Will grow most anywhere when established.

CHIVE (Allium Schenoprasum). Finely chopped leaves give a delicious flavor to salads.

COSTMARY (Chrysanthemum Balsamita tanacetoides). An old-fashioned, sweet-smelling herb with long narrow leaves and coarse, sprawling growth. Sometimes used in salads; the dried leaves are used as a beverage tea.

HOREHOUND (Marrubium vulgare). Dried leaves make a tea and fresh leaves make a remedial candy. Downy, crinkled gray foliage is very ornamental.

HYSSOP (Hyssopus officinalis). Leaves used for medicinal purposes and to season vegetables. A good edging plant. Rich blue flowers.

HYSSOP, PALESTINE. Much like the above but a more prostrate grower.

LAVENDER, TRUE (Lavandula officinalis). Dried flowers commonly used for scenting linens and in potpourris.

PENNYROYAL (Mentha Pulegium). Tender perennial. Used as a tea, either by itself or combined with Lemon Verbena.

PEPPERMINT (Mentha piperita). Leaves and tender tops may be infused in cooling drinks.

ROSEMARY (Rosmarinus officinalis). Fragrant leaves scent pot-pourris.

RUE (Ruta graveolens). Bits of the pungent blue-green foliage may be used with discretion to flavor salads or vegetables. May be used as a low clipped border plant for formal beds.

SAGE (Salvia officinalis). Dried leaves season meats, sausages, stuffings, and cheese.

SAVORY, WINTER (Satureja montana). Leaves season meats, sausages, vegetable dishes and certain liqueurs. An excellent plant for edging borders.

SPEARMINT (Mentha spicata). Fresh leaves used to flavor sauces and iced drinks, particularly juleps.

SWEET MARJORAM (Origanum Majorana). Fresh leaves season sausages, vegetable dishes and salads or scent potpourris.

SWEET WOODRUFF (Asperula odorata). Hay-scented leaves used to flavor wines. The plant is a good ground-cover for shady places.

TARRAGON, TRUE (Artemisia Dracunculus). One of the indispensable herbs. The basis for the well-known Tarragon vinegar, and used in salad dressings and special meat sauces.

THYME, KITCHEN (Thymus vulgaris). Dried leaves season meat dishes, gravies and dressings; fresh leaves excellent in salads.

THYME, LEMON-SCENTED (Thymus vulgaris, Golden Variegated). Used as a flavoring for drinks.

WORMWOOD (Artemisia Absinthium). A good background plant. Disliked by moths. The leaves are used to flavor cordials. 3 ft.

10 of one variety $5.50

PITZONKA'S Chrysanthemums

CARPET

Chrysanthemums come into their own when other garden flowers have faded and frosts are on the way. Their rich, glowing colors seem to be a combination of all the flowers the garden has known in the past months, a fitting farewell to another summer. These are the showiest of all perennials for the autumn garden, blooming over a period of many weeks and providing countless bouquets for enjoyment indoors.

Plant Chrysanthemums in full sun, in good rich soil that will not dry out. Allow at least 15 inches between plants. Well-rotted manure or good commercial fertilizer may be used when setting them out and as a side dressing when the buds are developing. Pinching back the plants in June will make them bushier and will encourage more bloom.

COLONIAL HERB GARDEN AT WILLIAMSBURG, VIRGINIA

The gardens at Williamsburg reflect the old-time charm of early America. Herbs for culinary use and for flavoring and scent were important parts of gardens then, for they were badly needed in daily living. Modern cooks are getting a lot of enjoyment in finding new uses for these old and time-honored plants. See page 10 for list of herbs.

Hardy Phlox

You will go a long way to find a better all-round midsummer blooming perennial than Hardy Phlox. Few plants offer a greater variety of red, pink, lavender, purple and all shades in between. It asks very little in the way of special care, and any good, well-drained garden soil suits it, in sun or light shade. Phlox blooms from early summer to frost, even through the "dog days." Best mass effects come from using at least three plants of the same variety. See page 9 for complete list.
